

Dear Sir/Madam,

The 2012 London Olympics provide an obvious solution to the current farce of MPs' expenses. After the games, the athletes' village will provide the perfect Parliamentary Halls of Residence. They would provide modern, standard, basic accommodation in easy reach of Westminster and apart from a travel allowance (to and from any constituency outside the greater London area), absolutely no other expenses would be necessary. The accommodation should be maintained out of the Home Office's budget.

Yours sincerely
